Vol. 36

Coldwater High School

*I've seen fire
and I've seen rain,
I've seen sunny days that
I thought would never end.
I've seen lonely times when
I could not find a friend.
But I always thought that I'd see you again.*

*And you may see me tonight
With an illegal smile
It don't cost very much
But it lasts a long while
Won't you please tell the man
I didn't kill anyone
No, I'm just trying to Have me some fun*

*Be cool
Stay in school
Play pool
By the pool
Follow the Golden Rule.*

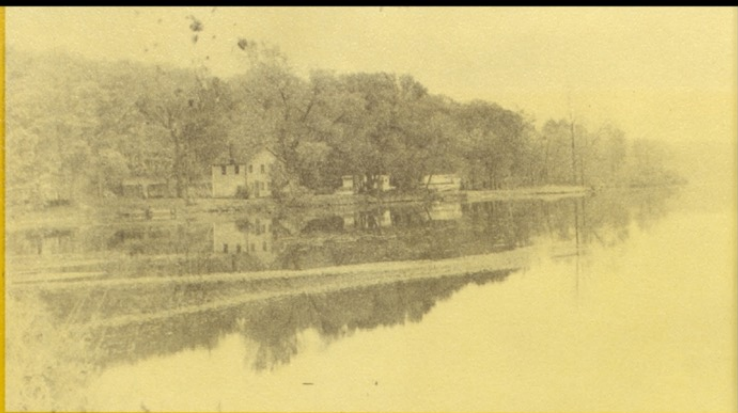

*I don't care how great you are,
And I don't care
what you're worth.
When it all ends up,
You've got to go back to Mother Earth.*

Memphis Slim

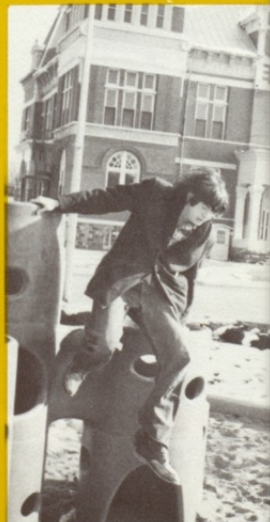

*I need time to find out
Where I am going
I need people to show me
Where I've been
I know the answer and it feels good
Just knowing
It's my friends who show me
Who I am*

W. J. Pillmore, P. Kowalke

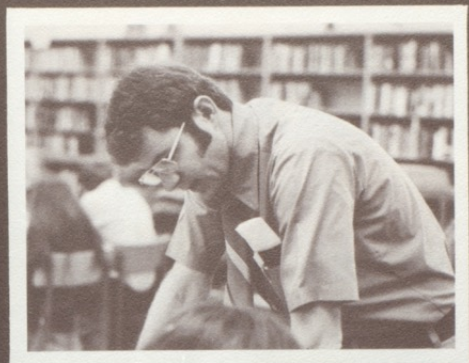

*Sometimes I wonder
What I'm gonna do
Cuz there ain't no cure for
The Summertime Blues.*

As our high school years finally come to a conclusion we seem to look back and reminisce to the good old days, remembering the good times, the bad times and yes, all your new and departed friends. But somehow we all let our prejudices separate our class into many different cliques that destroyed our class as a whole. So as we put on our caps and gowns graduation day we hope we leave our prejudices in the past and unite together for the last memory of our high school days.

Caught in the quiet,
Off on our own
Are you afraid?

Friends From Far Away

Students Elect: Nixon, VanLaanen

This has really been the year for elections! 18 year olds voted for the first time in national elections. Emotions ran high in the Presidential elections, as many students got their first taste of the political machine. We voted on questions of abortion, daylight savings time and Viet Nam Vet Compensation.

Here in the high school the competition between candidates for most offices was tough, however some people ran unopposed. The Mayor race was the topic of much discussion, with the final outcome of Craig VanLaanen regaining the win.

RIGHT: Lori VanLaanen was one of many students working in the national campaigns.

Det. Northern's Visit Short But Sweet

About twenty kids from Detroit Northern High School came to Coldwater as a part of a new exchange something like the Albion exchange. Unfortunately, due to the long bus ride back to Detroit, they were able to stay only a few hours. But it was a start and maybe next year the exchange can be longer.

Gymnastics Team New at CHS

Although the newly formed Gymnastics team did not take part in competition they did work many hours to prepare an exhibition of their skills.

Junior-Senior Prom

we're looking for a few good men

And a lot of good women. If you think you've got the guts, determination, and stamina to join the adventurous workaday world of two fisted comedy-then we want you!! At the Comedy Club we can take any feeble minded jibbering idiot and make a real human joke machine out of them. After just two easy lessons you'll be surprised at the number of people that laugh at you. Be the life of the party. Are YOU tired of saying ("I don't go to parties because I can't think of anything to say.") Would YOU like to say ("I go to parties because I can think of anything to say.")? It's as easy as falling off a log to make a fool of yourself. (any fool can do it) Below is just one example of how comedy insults can improve YOUR life. YES WE CAN TAKE ANY DOLT AND LAUGH AT THEM! (and that means YOU) LETS ZERO IN ON A TYPICAL TEENAGE DANCE. "Hi Betty, what is new?" "nothing much, Bill". You can just imagine what Bill is thinking. (That Betty sure is a dumb *$#&). Now look what happens after we give Betty a few pointers. "Hi Betty, what is new?" "Nothing much, Buttface." AND WHAT IS BILL THINKING? (WHAT A BABE) COMEDY IS GOOD FOR YOU. IT'S GOOD FOR ME.

Thanks to all the people who worked so hard to make this book possible, among them Don Corless, Ron Philbrick, Tom Porter and Mr. Sutula. But most of all "Thanks" to us. We've done a great job, so great in fact, that we'll probably take ourselves to dinner with the piano player's monkey.

the 1990s, the number of people with a diagnosis of schizophrenia has increased in many countries (1).

There is a growing awareness of the need to improve the quality of life of people with schizophrenia. This has led to a focus on the development of psychosocial interventions, which aim to help people with schizophrenia to live more independently and to participate more fully in society (2).

One of the most common psychosocial interventions is cognitive behavioural therapy (CBT). CBT is a form of therapy that helps people to change their thoughts and behaviours. It is based on the idea that our thoughts, feelings and behaviours are all interconnected and can influence each other (3).

CBT has been shown to be effective in helping people with schizophrenia to manage their symptoms and to improve their quality of life. It can help people to develop coping strategies, to challenge negative thoughts and to build self-esteem (4).

There are a number of reasons why CBT might be effective in helping people with schizophrenia. One reason is that it helps people to develop a more realistic view of the world. People with schizophrenia often have distorted thoughts and beliefs, and CBT helps them to challenge these and to develop a more balanced perspective (5).

Another reason why CBT might be effective is that it helps people to develop better coping strategies. People with schizophrenia often experience a range of symptoms, such as hallucinations and delusions, and CBT helps them to develop strategies to deal with these symptoms (6).

Finally, CBT helps people to build self-esteem and to develop a more positive outlook on life. People with schizophrenia often experience a loss of self-esteem and a sense of hopelessness, and CBT helps them to challenge these feelings and to develop a more positive attitude (7).

There are a number of limitations to CBT. One limitation is that it is not a cure for schizophrenia. It is a form of therapy that helps people to manage their symptoms and to improve their quality of life, but it does not eliminate the underlying condition (8).

Another limitation is that CBT is not suitable for everyone. Some people may find it difficult to engage in CBT, and some may not respond to it. It is important to assess each individual's needs and to tailor the intervention accordingly (9).

Despite these limitations, CBT remains one of the most effective psychosocial interventions for schizophrenia. It helps people to manage their symptoms and to improve their quality of life, and it is a valuable tool for mental health professionals (10).

There are a number of ways in which CBT can be delivered. It can be delivered in individual sessions, in group sessions or through self-help materials. The most common form of CBT is individual sessions, but group sessions and self-help materials are also used (11).

Individual sessions are typically conducted by a mental health professional, such as a psychologist or a therapist. The therapist works with the client to identify their thoughts and feelings, to challenge these and to develop coping strategies (12).

Group sessions are conducted with a group of people who are all experiencing similar problems. The therapist works with the group to help them to develop coping strategies and to support each other (13).

Self-help materials are designed to help people to manage their symptoms and to improve their quality of life. They can be in the form of books, pamphlets or computer programs (14).

There are a number of factors that can influence the effectiveness of CBT. One factor is the quality of the therapist. A therapist who is skilled in CBT and who has a good relationship with the client is more likely to be effective (15).

Another factor is the motivation of the client. A client who is motivated to engage in CBT and who is committed to making changes is more likely to benefit from the intervention (16).

Finally, the setting in which CBT is delivered can also influence its effectiveness. CBT delivered in a supportive and structured environment is more likely to be effective (17).

There are a number of ways in which the effectiveness of CBT can be measured. One way is to measure the client's symptoms. A reduction in the number and severity of symptoms is a sign that CBT is effective (18).

Another way is to measure the client's quality of life. An improvement in the client's quality of life, such as an increase in their independence and their ability to participate in society, is also a sign that CBT is effective (19).

Finally, the client's self-esteem and their outlook on life can also be measured. An increase in self-esteem and a more positive outlook on life are also signs that CBT is effective (20).

There are a number of challenges to the implementation of CBT. One challenge is the shortage of mental health professionals who are trained in CBT. This can limit the availability of CBT to people who need it (21).

Another challenge is the cost of CBT. CBT delivered in individual sessions can be expensive, and this can be a barrier for some people (22).

Finally, there is a need for more research into the effectiveness of CBT. While there is a growing body of evidence to support the effectiveness of CBT, more research is needed to confirm these findings (23).

Despite these challenges, CBT remains a valuable tool for helping people with schizophrenia to manage their symptoms and to improve their quality of life. It is a form of therapy that is based on sound principles and that has been shown to be effective in a range of studies (24).

There are a number of ways in which the effectiveness of CBT can be improved. One way is to train more mental health professionals in CBT. This would increase the availability of CBT to people who need it (25).

Another way is to develop more self-help materials. Self-help materials can be a cost-effective way to deliver CBT, and they can be made available to people who cannot access individual sessions (26).

Finally, there is a need for more research into the effectiveness of CBT. This would help to confirm the findings of existing studies and to identify areas for improvement (27).

In conclusion, CBT is a valuable tool for helping people with schizophrenia to manage their symptoms and to improve their quality of life. It is a form of therapy that is based on sound principles and that has been shown to be effective in a range of studies. Despite some challenges, CBT remains a valuable tool for mental health professionals (28).
