Homecoming 1986

1986 saw the most changes of any Homecoming year. But one event remained virtually unchanged and exciting, the crowning of the King and Queen.

John Scheidler and Marni Horton, chosen by their senior peers, received the title and prestigious glory of 1986 King and Queen.

Fortunately, the heavy rains let up just in time for the Homecoming ceremony which took place during halftime of the Albion football game.

A Time For Fun

Homecoming has always been a special time for the students at Coldwater High School, and this year was no exception.

The fun began on Monday when students were asked to display school spirit by wearing their catchiest sneakers on a day aptly dubbed as "Sneaker Day." Action continued Tuesday, "Shades of Bermuda Day," when students wore sunglasses and tropical colors bright enough to blind.

"College T-Shirt Day" was the high point of the week, when students wore shirts ranging from MSU to Harvard.

That night a large crowd competed in the first annual Homecoming Olympics. Extra points for Homecoming were awarded to winners of the Peanut Roll, Ping-pong Throw, Shave a Balloon Contest, and the infamous Pie-eating Contest.

Seniors put their noses to the grindstone (or the gym floor) to win the Peanut Roll and the Ping-pong Throw.

Pigging out royally on chocolate, lemon and coconut cream pies, the juniors won the Pie-eating Contest, while the freshmen, barely able to shove themselves, finished first in the Shave a Balloon Contest.

Thursday everyone but the teachers wore jeans on Jeans Day, and the week ended with Red and White Day on Friday.

1. "The Bagley Look" — Shawn Bagley wears a bit of the Islands on "Shades of Bermuda Day."
2. Jenny Emory, Sara Kuckle and Rob Coville get a kick out of ever but algebra on "Shades of Bermuda Day."

2. "Attack of the Killer Voltek Cardinal;" John Scheidler and Julie Swanson "work" on their static display.

A Time Of Changes

The 1986 Homecoming will perhaps best be remembered as "the year of changes."

It all started amidst rumors regarding the elimination of floats. Floats, the products of many a headache, were replaced by static displays. That change ended up convenient, since week-long heavy rains made working outside almost impossible.

Injuries and controversy marred what turned out to be the last Mudbowl Football game played. However, even with those changes, Homecoming 1986 proved to be one of the best ever.

Who could forget the controversial "Get (CENSORED) at Mudbowl '86 by the Seniors" shirts, the juniors' hotly contested Mudbowl victory, the monsoon rains, the fun of building static displays.

Another change involved the week of competitive events. For the first time, all games were played in the gym on a single night, a sort of crazy olympics with classes competing against each other. Students tried their luck at everything from pushing peanuts across the gym floor with their noses to shaving a lathered balloon.

"Where's the Beach?" seemed to sum up the week of fun. Homecoming 1986, a week to remember.

Fashion

What To Wear An Everyday Affair

Fashion this year at CHS ran diversely. From leggings to long skirts, Swatches (watches) to Guess jeans, hoop earrings to Mohawks, fashion has been more relaxed this year than for a long time. Most students say their style is casual, and they dress to reflect their mood for that specific day.

Some favorite fads were big sweaters, suspenders, Reebok shoes, banana clips, Fergie bows, tux shirts, ripped blue jeans and homemade bracelets.

What about next year? Well, judging from this year, next year's fashions should be comfortable, bright, and most of all, fun.

1. CHS students Dawn Whitaker, Leanne Clouse, Sharla Anderson, Lisa Bohanon, and Kathy Dutcher display some of the year's various fads.

2. Julie Nichols shows her downhome style in her Guess dress.

3. Bottoms up for Guess jeans.

Fashion

1. Swatch watches made a big impact this year.
2. Michelle Duddy and Rod Bytwerk dressed for success.
3. Lisa Licht wears yet another unusual outfit.
4. Derrick Padar dressed trendy for Cardinal fashion day.

'Bye Bye Birdie' — A Hit!

"Bye Bye Birdie" was very successful mainly because of hard work and talent. Leads were chosen in the spring, and rehearsed throughout the summer. That allowed more time and attention for the chorus.

The chorus included many hysterical teenagers who, reflecting the mania of the late 1950s when rock and roll burst on the scene, went crazy over their idol, Conrad Birdie. Poking fun at a time period when hip swiveling rock stars were banned from T.V., Birdie appealed to parents who remembered, and students who simply enjoyed.

John Bailey, choir director, presented this annual hit with the welcome assistance of three community members. David Fox directed the production, Donna Schulte provided theatrical assistance, and Dan Hefner provided choreography

1. Rob Cornwell, lead guitar, Jesse Cornwell, drums, and Matt Bowers, were a popular band at Succotash.
2. "The Best of Times" may be the fun of singing in a variety show. It was also the number song by Tara Hatfield.
3. An exuberant quartet of hams, Kristin Bell, Robin Lewis, Ladaere Knapp and Shelly Cazier, delighted everyone with "Splish Splash."

6. CHS's popular band, "Blitz," features Russ Porter, Matt Galliers, Miley Semmelroth and Jim Niblette.

Spirits Move At CHS

Spirits were out in full force, and the decorations were no less than awesome at the first CHS Halloween dance, held at the Tibbits Opera House. For those who were there, it was a night to remember.

Dreamed up by a few creative seniors, the dance was sponsored by the student council. Costumes ranged from your basic vampire to such interesting creatures as Gumby and Miss Piggy. Prizes went to the top three, voted by police chaperons.

It is hoped that the dance will become an annual event, and that the popularity will grow in coming years. Not only was it fun, it provided a pretty good alternative for those who feel they're a bit old for trick-or-treating.

1. Lisa Light and Bridget Crotty exchange "the latest" as they pause for refreshments.
2. Miss Piggy and Kermit the frog (Dawn Boester and Tom Foley) won the costume competition.
3. Cattou Mayeur, exchange student from France, displays the latest fashions from Paris.

"Jewels of the Nile" — Coldwater Style! Tracy Grady, Rick Snyder, Dave Hollen and Chantelle Snyder enjoy the Halloween Dance.

Elizabeth Lake, John Scheidler and Jenny Spaulding pose a classified horror scene.

High Society

1. Ann Strobel, Dale Chrisman, Tim McCauley, Doug Lake and Cindy Yope examine the "remains" of a past assistant principal.

3. Dancers perform on Tibbits stage.

— Spirit Week Favorite . . .

Although it was only four days long, Spirit Week 1987 had its share of excitement and great participation. Dress-up days and games let the CHS spirit shine through.

Perhaps the highlight of the entire week was the rootbeer chugging contest. The top two qualifiers from each class competed in the first "Chug-Off" during the pep assembly. Senior Charlie White was crowned "Chug Chap 1987," and his performance was cheered on by screaming fans.

Another popular event was musical chairs. Fierce competition, sometimes bordering on violent, resulted in the sophomore class winning the last chairs, and top honors.

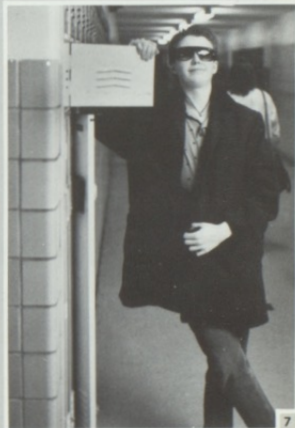

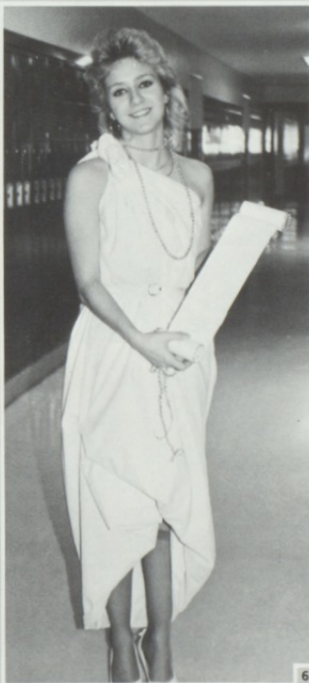

Although the basketball game's final score was disappointing, the week closed with an awesome dance. Theme for the dance was Friday the 13th Phobia.

... Rootbeer Chugging?

1. Quick, quick — bring Jeff Kimble a napkin!
2. Bob Cesena, Diana Rodriguez and Charlie White compete in the fast paced and furious rootbeer chugging contest while Ginger Foley and Heath Carnahan look on.
3. Chantelle Snyder and Stacey Loose battle for a seat during musical chairs, while Diana Rodriguez, on the left, snagged one easily.
4. Shawn Scheidler, Jenny Fox, Kristy Bytwerk and Lisa Licht nervously grab chair backs while they wait for the music to stop.

5. A likely pair of comedienne, Marty Edwards and Tim McCauley whoop it up at the Friday night Spirit Week dance.
6. It takes spirit and courage to come to school togged in a toga, and Casey Tobias had lots of both.
7. Marty Edwards may look stylish, but he's really just conforming to the "Wear Black on Friday the 13th" requirement during Spirit Week.

BRANCH DISTRICT LIBRARY

American For A Year

The first difference I noticed was the way you dress. In Germany you wear plain clothes, although it's also fashion to wear jeans.

We would never wear short skirts in winter, mostly because we either walk to school or ride our bikes. You wouldn't wear make-up to school, and you can't see many girls with a permanent. It's also not common to shave armpits or legs.

The second big difference is the American school system. In Germany the kids are divided according to their possibilities into three different kinds of schools, and they go for either 9, 10 or 13 years. If you want to go to college, you have to go to a special kind of school for 13 years, the gymnasium. Just a small percentage go to college, although it doesn't cost you anything to go.

At our schools we don't stress discipline as much as here. It doesn't matter if you are too late. Our school-day starts usually at 7:50 am and lasts until 12:30 or 1:10 pm. Since we have a shorter day we have to do more homework. We can't choose our classes, because everybody takes about 12 required ones.

— Franziska Fenner

Going to CHS is for me very different than going to school in Germany.

My day at home was much shorter. I used to leave school at 1:10 pm, so I was really tired in school here. I missed our long breaks in between classes, and going out in the school yard.

Everything runs in a fast pace, and I found hardly the time to talk to someone. That made it really difficult to find some friends. But after a while we became close to some people.

What I really like is the school spirit and the spirit wars; it brought some fun to the school day.

But there are still things I don't like; commercials in between movies, pep assemblies, and peanut butter.

— Sabine Mathey

The greatest difference I found between United States and France is the school.

In effect, French school starts at 8:15 am, but it often finishes at 5:30 pm. It's a long day spent at school, and students generally don't have time for sports after school.

We also have more homework. Time required for homework is often more than two hours a day. But French school also has some advantages.

There are two breaks of 20 min. in the day, and an hour and a half for lunch. We have 128 days of school, and more holidays in the school year.

I enjoy school here, and also Cold-water, which is not too big and not too small for me. I like to see so much gardens, trees and little animals everywhere; that is difficult to find in France.

— Catherine Mayeur

At the first month of my American life, I had felt like "I'm in the movie scene." But now, I don't feel like this!

In Japan, our school year begins in April, and the graduation is held in February.

I was very glad I didn't have to wear the uniform and could choose the classes to take.

We stay in the same classroom almost all day. Teachers move from classroom to classroom. So it was hard to get used to the switching classes. It's very nice we have no school on Saturday in this country!

I think each school system has advantages. In this country we can't go anywhere without cars. It's very different. We use subways, trains, bicycles, buses and taxis much in Japan. I miss them!

I like to see the sun sinking below the horizon. We can't see the horizon because of many high mountains and buildings in Japan. I always feel the views over here look flat!

I like this school. Thanks for having me, CHS!
Hiroko Tsutsumi

"School" was the first thought that came into my head when somebody asked me about the main differences between "Uncle Sam" and Germany.

The pass to that special, secret place called "bathroom," the tardies for even one second late, discipline rules for almost everything, prohibition for kissing in the hallway, and that feeling of panic when you hurry from one end of the high school to the other to get to your classroom... this is a part of CHS.

Because you are always on the run, it is hard to get to know your classroom fellows better. What about our school?

The teacher's almost late, we did our "bathroom business" during breaks (5 min. 15 min., and 20 min.) without getting into competition against the time. Teachers used to chase us outside to breathe fresh air and to have a talk with your friends. What else is different?

Kids who get into trouble, pregnant teenagers in high school, old fashioned cars which I like very much, the drinking limit, the age when you can get your driver's license, which is 18 in Germany, and the driving lessons which are very expensive over there.

Although there are a lot of things that I don't like, I still like the school, the cheap prices of cigarettes, to go shopping late at night, my art and Health Occupations classes (including the people who are in them), and all the people who I got the chance to know better, to come closer.

"Seeing the results of my efforts helping kids" is the favorite aspect of his job, according to CHS principal Dr. Stanley R. Bushouse. During his nine years as principal at Coldwater High School, Bushouse considers the computer typing class, minimum requirements for graduation and the Assertive Discipline program among his favorite accomplishments. This year, one of his goals was to reduce the number of disciplinary problems. Bushouse holds a M.A., E.D.D. and B.A. Degrees, and taught science before going on to administration because he wanted a more challenging job.

One of Jeffery Cable's goals this year, as CHS' new assistant principal, was to become familiar with the students, and provide a positive learning environment. Cable chose Coldwater because he likes the size of the school, and happily reports no major problems. He is definitely a man you can "look up" to.

Scheduling games for all 47 teams in both CHS and Legg Middle School is one of the biggest job challenges facing Athletic Director Wayne Kellogg. In addition to that, he also has to fill 53 coaching positions each year, hire officials for every game, arrange transportation for traveling teams, and evaluate both the coaches and the facilities.

Back to the Future

Our senior year, a time to reflect on our past, and anticipate the future. We walked through the halls of CHS clad in designer jeans, Coca-Cola tee-shirts, and untied Reeboks, exchanging exciting gossip or raving about the latest of the "Rocky" movies. Funny that we were wearing Coke tee-shirts when the latest craze in soft drinks was Pepsi. Didn't we all take the "Pepsi Challenge"?

Much of our free time was spent "jamming" to the likes of Madonna, Michael Jackson, and Cindi Lauper while cruising Chicago Street, occasionally stopping at McD's or Burger King for a bite to eat.

Speaking of free time, remember when they considered extending the school day until 5 p.m., and taking away our summer vacations?

The Class of '87 experienced some astounding "firsts." We were the first 6th graders to attend Legg Middle School, and some of the first kids to grow up with television's "Sesame Street." We filled the first disposable diapers, and took Cable Television's many channels for granted.

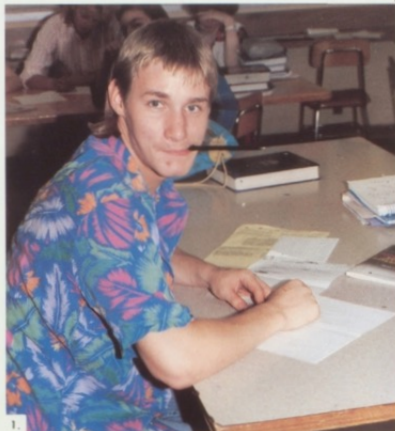

Hundreds of our quarters were dropped into video games before we started playing for free on home computers. We grew up knowing that a man could walk on the moon, then watched the first Shuttle go into orbit.

We've danced to the sounds of Elton John, to that disco beat, and on to the New Wave craze. Weekends didn't seem complete without the latest episode of "Miami Vice" and a piece of pie from Trivial Pursuit.

There are so many more things that we have seen and done. What does the future hold for us? What will we be doing or wearing at our 25th Class Reunion?

A Year In Our Life . . .

This has been a pretty good year for the class of "89." Although we lost our mudbowl and came in last in the overall count of Homecoming points, we've showed a lot of spirit in pep-assemblies and at the games. Our competitive spirit has also shone through on the field, courts, greens, track, and diamonds.

Nothing has stopped our pursuit of a good time, or changed what a special group of people the sophomore class is. Our class is a diverse realm of personalities. We have first class musicians, talented athletes, serious academics, active student leaders and an overall enthusiastic outlook on the present and future.

Our sophomore crowd is a terrific one, and it wouldn't be the same if even one person were missing.

A New Beginning

Frosh Begin New Year

Kelly Kane, Sara Kuckel, Larus Garn, Dan Harris and Heath Carnahan plead, "Gimme a break — not another camera!"

R

Remember way back in kindergarten when you were the new kid on the block? You were going to a new school, you saw new people, met new friends, and had different teachers. When you learned all the ropes, and were a confident fifth grader, they hit you again, sending you off to Legg Middle School for sixth grade. Everything was new once again.

Well, now it has happened again. As freshmen, the first year in high school brought many new fears. Remember getting lost? You knew better than to ask an upperclassman for directions. You wondered if you were setting a good impression, whether people were noticing you. When you went in your classrooms, there sat new teachers. Even on the very first day of school, they wanted to know where your hall pass was.

Now that our first year in high school is all over, you might think "No sweat." But when you make it to your senior year, you might remember those kindergarten years once again. No matter which way you turn, a job or college, it's a new beginning all over again.

Spring Delivered Book We Made It!

Staff members still cringe when the words are uttered. Long months of constant toil, overseen by two ogres (or, as they are more affectionately called, advisors) may have left permanent scars, all from that manifestation of all that is evil — the FINAL DEADLINE.

It all began in the summer of 1986, when Editor Joe Massey, Assistant Editor Kristy Bytwerk, Aaron Garn, Heather Bytwerk and Kris Dobay attended Taylor's Yearbook Camp at Calvin College, and many of the latest techniques, learned during the weeklong workshop, are reflected in this book.

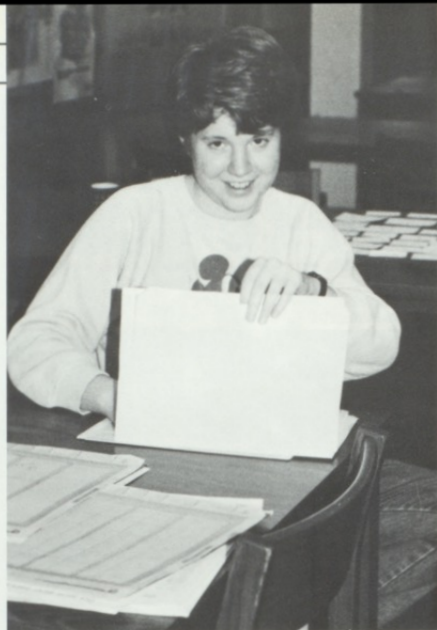

Since this is the first spring delivered book in many years, work began early, in August, when ads were sold. Organization and hard work paid off, for money from ad sales was nearly five times the amount sold in 1986.

In September, when the 1987 Cardinal Yearbook Staff was complete, the pressure began. It didn't let up until nearly spring, when the main book was completed.

After the toil, hard work, headaches, frustrations and a few work/pizza parties came a final product, and well deserved pride. Spring has been traditionally thought of as a time of rebirth. It may now hold added significance for 1987 yearbook staff members, who produced the first spring delivered book in more than 20 years.

Reflections of 86-87

Mrs. Hayes and her crew of Crusaders have published CHS' newspaper, "The Mirror." "It is a newspaper by and for students," said Hayes, "and we include news of school and community events as well as features and editorials pertinent to students."

In charge of newspaper were Cathy Norton, editor; Robin Sebalj, features, and Phil Herman, sports. Together, they and their staff pledged to outdo boredom, avenge the stories of well-known but unlike literature, and most definitely disrupt class, unintentionally, of course.

Their reflections of the happenings and good times at CHS are well appreciated, and will always be remembered. A picture may be worth a thousand words, but students in Haye journalism classes were the ones who took the time to take the photographs, and write down those thousands of words.

May their heads be full of ideas, and their typewriters full of ink.

Where Is Cardinal Spirit?

Student Council

A big thanks goes to John Scheidler, who was a man of many talents for the entire year. His dedication to the student body contributed to a very successful 86-87 Student Council.

Student Council

Student Council Makes Things Happen

"They've laid the groundwork for a more active Student Council. We want to make things happen," said Student Council's new advisor, Gordon Swan.

One of their newest, and proudest, happenings was a Halloween Dance, held at the Tibbits Opera House. Members of this year's council also planned and executed Homecoming Week, organized dances and livelier pep assemblies, combatted the midwinter blues with Spirit Week, and moved a jukebox into the cafeteria.

Funding for projects was accomplished in part by after school candy sales, and their gray cart in the front lobby became a familiar after-school scene.

Under the auspices of LaShon Valle, work was finally completed on a project that has been considered for over two years; rewriting the council's constitution.

Council members also found time to involve members of the student body in the selection of their leaders. It was the council's wish to have students become more active in matters pertaining to their welfare. Student Council President John Scheidler noted, "We don't think students realize that they can bring in new ideas. The student council is for the students, and they should realize that."

1. Lisa Blansit, Scott Wu and Brad Bettinger vote "Aye." Parliamentary procedure was reintroduced, and the students noticed how much more productive and efficient the meetings were.
2. Thanks to Jim Barnes' persistence, Lisa Blansit and Jim accept the jukebox for the cafeteria. Even the food tastes better with music, especially on the days when Irene doesn't buy too much Willie Nelson time.
3. Margi Marot and Mary Kroemer pack food for needy families in Col-dwater. The annual food drive was reinstated, and over 500 pounds of food was donated by students who participated.
4. LaShon Valle, Elizabeth Morgan, Kris Cizas and Wayne Burke get wrapped up in decorating the halls and display case for the Christmas holidays.

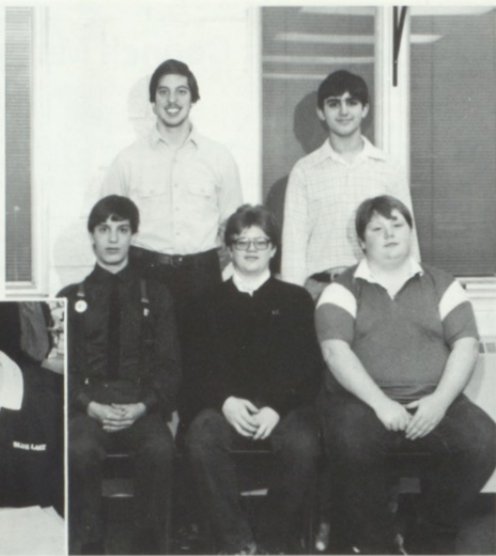

Chess Club Competes

Chess may be the name of the game, but competition is their goal, namely to win the Michigan High School State Championship. Under the direction of Dr. Raymond Hobbs, members of the Chess Club also entered the Motor City Chess Open and the United States National Chess Team Championship.

Marty Frantom, Joe Lavelline and Dale Chrisman added distinction to the group as rated members of the United States Chess Federation.

C-Club Boosts Sports Funding

Athletic activities which face limited funding get a helpful boost from the C-Club. During the year, members take on a variety of money-making projects, from Hoop Shoots to Coat Checks. The profits are then used to encourage everything from volleyball to intramural basketball.

For fun, this active group of students took a ski trip, went canoeing, and enjoyed a bowling party.

S.A.D.D. — New, Informative

CHS' newest club provides an important service to fellow students, along with helpful information. Their goal, according to Advisor Marilyn DePue, is to "inform students of the dangers of drunk driving, and provide a pool of drivers for students who need rides when drinking."

Activities this year included an informative visit by a member of the Michigan state Police, and attendance at the first annual Western Michigan Student Action Workshop.

Being The Best

"Being the best they could be" was the goal set by members of the CHS Marching Band, and their first step towards that goal was a week of hard work at Band Camp in August.

Sporting new red and white band uniforms, they received straight Division I ratings, earning a score of 94, the highest total awarded a CHS band in 20 years.

Director David Carman proudly announced, "They're the best marching band I've worked with in my ten years of teaching."

Snow Adventures

What sport provides fun and excitement while breaking up a typically monotonous school day? cross-country skiing.

During skiing sessions, students were divided into "adventure groups," and expected to provide an adventure in which the whole class could participate.

Adventures ranged from picnics in the snow to obstacle courses and volleyball games. Students were graded on the uniqueness and creativity of their adventures.

Ski instructor Betsy Kiebler was very enthusiastic. "Cross-country skiing is like a different world in which learning is so enjoyable ... and laughable, especially when we fall down! Every person shares a feeling of comradeship. It's a very special unit to me."

Participating in this sport allowed students to not only learn a new and different way to have a good time, they also gained a skill they may use for the rest of their lives.

— Kristy Bytwerk

Skiing is only part of the fun in Betsy Kiebler's cross country skiing unit, there were also "snow adventures."

"Clarence of Arabia"

"Clarence Of Arabia" was this year's movie from Bovine Productions. Clarence, a boring, burned out stagehand played by John Scheidler, sleeps a lot backstage during performances of "Lawrence of Arabia, the Musical." Before he nods off during the first act, he sees Ophelia, played by Jenny Spaulding, in the audience, and puts her in his dreams.

Bovine Productions was started by Perry McLamb and John Scheidler.

This is their third and best movie so far, say Perry and John. The idea for the film came from a variety of people, but once the basic story line was developed the two went from there. With help, especially from Ruth Scheidler, and luck, costumes, a cast, and a camel were put together for a week of filming. Filming was done at Tibbits Opera House, Warren Dunes State Park, and Coldwater Lake. Costs totaled around $200.

In his dream, Clarence rides across the dunes on his trusty camel Camelot to save Ophelia from a band of desert kidnapers, played by Paul Brown, Brian Hyslop, and Chris Burkhardt. He also does battle with an evil pirate, Philip Herman, in another dream.

Clarence always gets rudely awakened by the relentless stage manager Ruth Scheidler. CHS students Shawn Bagley, Jenni Davidson, Rhonda Hansel, Elizabeth Lake and Laura Herman appear onstage or work behind the scenes.

A sound track is being planned since it was transferred to video tape says Bovine Productions. Keep your eyes open for "Clarence Of Arabia" and for Bovine Productions; Perry and John plan to do more films. Look out Spielberg!

Thanks to the Student Council, students now have the privilege of listening to the hottest hits on the cafeteria jukebox during lunch, and before and after school.

Half of the profits from the jukebox go to council funds, and the other half belong to B&B Vending, which provided the jukebox free of charge. This is just one of the improvements Student Council has made in order to make life at CHS more enjoyable. Although it took a while to get rolling, the jukebox was well worth the wait.

With tunes ranging from "We Will Rock You" to "Elvira," the jukebox gives students a way to relax and concentrate on something other than the food during lunch.

Catching Some Z-Z-Z'S

"There's no such thing as boredom," says Ken Hamlet, but others tend to disagree.

Many seniors are especially opposed to Hamlet's views. Robin Sebalj, demonstrating a bad case of senioritis, stated, "Boredom is being a senior and just putting in time at CHS."

Lisa Hook also has a problem staying attentive in some of her classes.

"Boredom is sitting in a classroom talking about things that don't make sense."

"Being bored is sitting in a class waiting for everyone else to finish the assignment that was due at the beginning of the hour," says Pam Garman.

Vice principal Jeff Cable, on the other hand, looks beyond school and states that boredom is found in "someone who is unable to put creativity or beauty in the things around them."

Judging from all that, the faculty seems to have quite a different concept of boredom than the students. Now the question remains, just how do we define creativity and beauty?

— Staff

Mirror Image

Webster's Dictionary defines twins as "a twifold or double." Some of the twins at CHS may look like doubles on the outside, but their inside personalities are very different.

Problems may go along with growing up as a twin. Brad and Bryce Bettinger both work at McDonald's, play varsity tennis, and are members of CHS Student Council. "There's always someone around to bug you," says Brad when asked about being a twin. "Brad's a narc," joked Bryce.

Some twins said that there were more advantages. Aaron Hess, talking about his brother Andy, says "The best thing is that I always have a mirror when I need it."

The Beckhusens, Paul and Eric, both play varsity football. Paul says it's good to grow up with a twin because "you always have a friend there to go through it with." Eric, who also plays varsity basketball, says being a twin is good because "there is somebody your age to do things with, and to understand you."

The twins at CHS are rather confusing because there are so many, but when two people can look so much alike and yet be so different and original, getting a little confused in the halls is worth it.

Roofing truck tipped over.

Tar Wars

A most unpleasant surprise greeted students when they returned to CHS last fall. In addition to the "wonderful" smells from the cafeteria, their noses were assaulted by the "fragrant" odor of roofing tar.

Since the job had not been completed before school began, students and faculty members had to suffer through hot fall afternoons with windows closed, or else suffocate from the fumes. Through it all, workers stomped around on the roof slapping down tar.

Lisa Blansit stares into space.

Gary Johns gets a lift from Kelly Young when they take a break after stocking shelves, a part of their after school job responsibilities.

Making change for customers is one element of Monica Crawford's job at Glover Drugs.

Students Work For Variety of Reasons

Many CHS students choose to work after school, for a variety of reasons. It is interesting to find out why these already busy people subject themselves to job related pressures at such an early age.

It all starts with the task of selecting a place to work, asking for an application, then returning it promptly. Completing that application may take hours, since it must be finished in the best penmanship possible, and must not include any mistakes. Ironically, that place of business may spend no more than 10 minutes reading and filing your application among other hungry applicants' life stories.

Waiting comes next. First you get nervous, then anxious, and finally mad or disappointed. If they do call, then what? An interview? What should you wear? How should you act? What questions will they ask?

Finally the interview day arrives. With tidy clothes, combed hair, brushed teeth, you do a great job of trying not act nervous.

When you walk in the door, the person before you slowly pushes the exit door open and staggers on their way.

When the manager asks questions, you mutter, hoping your answers match what you wrote on your application, especially when it comes to the biggie, "Why do you think I should hire you for this job?"

Getting hired sends a surge of excitement through your body. You've just been hired for your first job!

Having an after school job means leaving school by 3:00, then hurrying home to change clothes and get to work. It means fewer hours at home, and even less time to do homework.

It also means eating fast food you can't afford with your petty paychecks, and may mean doing things your mother couldn't force you to do, like washing windows, taking out garbage, sweeping, mopping, and scrubbing toilets.

You may wonder why you do it all. It may be for a car, new clothes, a stereo, college money, or, that favorite of all, weekend spending money. However, the most important lesson of all soon becomes evident; self-pride.

Plus: Tim Kellogg Named To All-State Team

Varsity Takes Twin Valley

"The 1986 season will be remembered as a year marked by a great defensive unit, a dominating ball control offense, and a hard working senior class," according to Coach John Heistan. "The 7-0 Twin Valley League record produced Coldwater High School's sixth Twin Valley Championship and our first undefeated League team since 1973."

Although their season opened with a close loss to Lumen Christie, the Cardinals downed league teams in the next seven games. The Harper Creek game, which was delayed by tornadoes, wind and rain proved that weather could not dampen the team's spirit.

In their final three games, the Cards faced undefeated teams. In a revengeful game for the seniors, they beat a tough Marshall team that had beaten them the year before. Capturing the Twin Valley Championship outright with a win over Lakeview, the Cards faced state ranked Three Rivers in their final game. Losing that game ended the playoff hopes.

After his final game at Coldwater High School, Dave Hollen, senior, summed it up. "Thanks for a great season, coach. We all enjoyed it."

JV's Experience Ups And Downs

This was a year of ups and downs. The record doesn't show it, but there were as many ups as downs.

After losing to Lumen Christi by a wide margin, Coldwater dominated the next three ball games everywhere except the scoreboard, ending up with a tie and two losses.

Close calls were common; two of the six losses arrived in the last two minutes of the games.

When these sophomores join the varsity team, hitting on defense will be aggressive, and the offense should not miss a beat. In the end that may mean another Twin Valley Championship at Coldwater High School.

Varsity Basketball

On The Rim Of Success

Cardinal fans were treated to some exciting games this year in the Twin Valley race for the title.

Pre-season picks predicted Coldwater would finish 4th, but an eight game winning streak put them in position to possibly win the Twin Valley title, and it was a tight race.

Culp's Cagers scrimmaged over the summer, and attended basketball camp at Western Michigan University. Over the holidays they won the Vicksburg Invitational Championship.

Into the season Card fans saw a record breaking score put on the board when Chuck Jessup made a free throw in the last second of the Harper Creek game, making the final score 99 to 68, one point away from "bustin the scoreboard." That 99 was the highest score in CHS history.

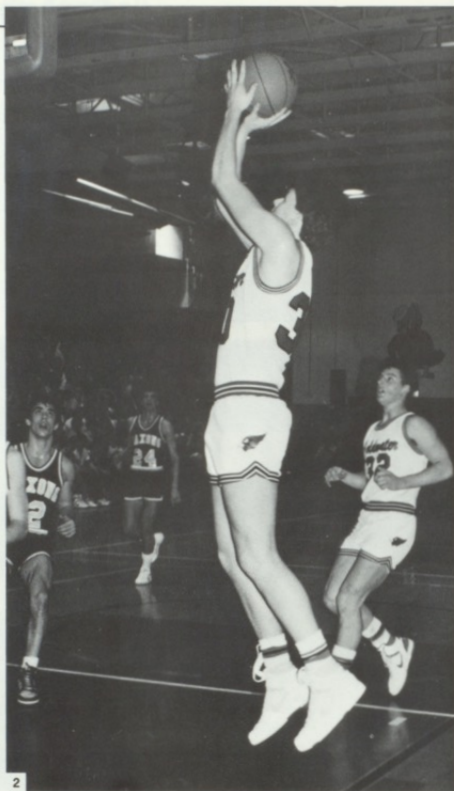

Hot shooters Tom Foley, scoring 38 points, and Hasting Saxons' Mike Brown, 43 points, turned the Hasting game into a shooting contest. Baskets smoked, and 183 points were scored by the final buzzer.

Several weeks later many Card fans were turned away because the gym was packed to capacity for the Sturgis game. In front of a steamy, tense crowd, the Sturgis jinx continued as the Trojans defeated the Cards for the 7th consecutive year.

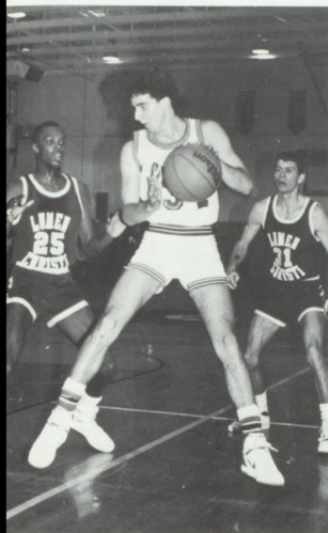

As this goes to press Coldwater stands one game out of first place with two games yet to be played. The season will undoubtedly go down to the wire when Coldwater plays Hastings, and Sturgis plays Marshall.

1. A rare photo! Tim Kellogg, normally the leading rebounder, launches a shot early in the Albion game as Tom Foley, leading shooter, prepares to rebound. Craig Winbigler moves in to assist against the Wildcats.
2. Tom Foley goes for two as Dave Aker rushes to the boards. Foley, who spent many hours working on ball shots and ball skills, saw it pay off this year. He is known for his rainbow shot, and averages 21 points a game.
3. Junior Tom Landis drives to the hoop.

Varsity Basketball

Senior Eric Branham was an important factor when the Cardinals wheeled off an eight game winning streak.

Craig Winbigger leaps to get a shot off on the Saxons. Jeff Schorffhaar, the quickness factor, looks on. Schorffhaar's hustle was the spark in the team's fast break and their defensive press.

Junior Varsity Basketball

JV's Work To Improve

Rich Foster and Aaron Downs led this year's Junior Varsity basketball squad. While few games were won, and the team did not feature a star player, there was impressive improvement in individual performances. That gain may provide the key to the future.

Sophomore Todd Mitmesser worked his way from the bench to starting line-up. Dave Martinson was the spark plug off the bench, providing smart floor leadership. Tim Porter made his mark at center, and, in spite of limited playing time, Jon Foley and Jeff Paarberg scored many points.

Andy Schorfar came up from the freshman team and started at guard. David Evens, Jason Wellet, Steve Fox, Tim Stempfen, Dustin Dean and Dave Simmerman rounded out this upcoming team.

Girl's Varsity Basketball

Out On Top

Over the summer, the Lady Cards worked long and hard on basketball skills. When their season ended with a record of 20 wins and two losses, it was obvious that their time had been well spent. For the third straight year, the Lady Cards' fast breaking style of play led them to the Branch County Championship.

After fighting off Albion in two close games, and a sweet victory over Marshall, the Twin Valley title was also theirs, but hopes of state tournament titles were dashed by a loss to Albion in the District Championship. However, the Lady Cards' season was truly a success, and something in which they can take pride.

1. Merry Borton was valuable as a team player and morale booster. She rarely missed a practice or a smile.
2. Co-Captain Christie Swan boxes out and looks for a rebound. Swan led the team in rebounding with 217 boards. She was voted to the First Team All-Twin Valley and was selected for Honorable Mention All State.
3. Monica Crawford beats an Albion player with a drive to the basket as teammate Heidi Olsen looks on. Crawford and Olsen were well known for their aggressiveness.

Future Looks Good For Lady Cards

The Junior Varsity Lady Cards finished the year with a respectable 15-5 record. They were led by Tracy Barker with 163 points. Leanna Clouse ripped down 151 boards, and tall Cheryl Stevens finished second in rebounding. Tina Bassage provided quickness, and Toby Stetler added spirit. Jill Swan and Lori Johns made their marks in the rebounding and scoring columns.

With players like these, the future looks bright for the Lady Cards.

Varsity Cheerleaders

Thanks to the cheerleaders, Coldwater fans will now have a mascot that doesn't appear to be losing its feathers. During the year, they raised funds to replace the aging Cardinal mascot costume.

They also brought a lot of spirit, not only by leading the cheering at games and pep assemblies, but also by painting miles of signs and banners for halls, lockers and the gym. And, as a result of summer cheerleading camp at Michigan State University, new cheers and routines were added.

Captain Chantelle Snyder, the only senior member of the varsity squad, and co-captain Lori Silvers, led the groups this year.

Varsity Spirit Shines Through

"I think our program is developing well. We have an excellent junior varsity squad this year, and that should help our performance next season." Those proud words are from Kent Neitzert, varsity volleyball coach. His teams' spirit and hard work were reason for pride.

According to senior Kristie Gleason and Ann Rickert, participating in the volleyball was not only fun, it enabled them to gain new skills and new friends. Two players learned those new skills extremely well; Cindy Yope and Gretchen Rzepka were named Most Improved Players.

Co-captains Mittmesser and Dobay have each won four varsity letters in golf, and both were named on the All Conference Team. Mittmesser was chosen for the First Team, and Dobay was given Honorable Mention.

Cross Country

Off On The Right Foot

In November, 1986, Jill Strawser won the Michigan State Championship Race and became the first girl in CHS history to win a state championship. Strawser also won the Twin Valley Championship Race, and was joined on the All Conference team by teammates Dawn Valle, Tammy Huntley and Joan Monroe.

The Lady Cards, who finished sixth in the state, had a cross-country season full of success stories, beginning with their win over Hillsdale, the defending State Champions. They beat Hillsdale not once, but twice, then went on to topple nearly every other team in the Twin Valley League. Winning the Twin Valley Championship and the County Meet were frosting on the cake.

CHS Boys' Cross Country Team won their seventh straight County Championship, and finished third in the Twin Valley Conference. Tad Thayer, Shane Finney and Brian Licht were named All Conference, and both Finney and Thayer qualified for the State Meet.

Gymnasts Continue Winning Tradition

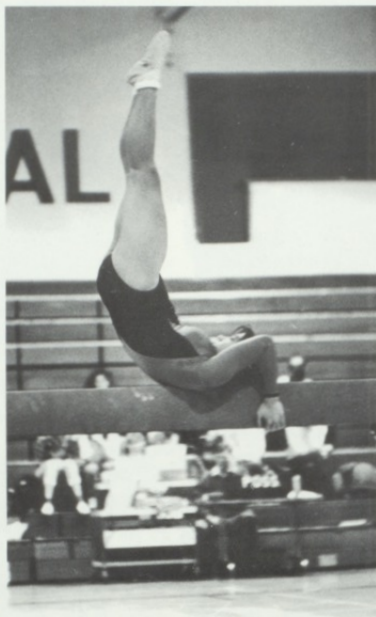

Cardinal gymnasts continued their tradition of winning despite many injuries this season.

Team captain and senior, Heather Greenamyer showed continued success on beam, floor exercise, and vault. She also provided leadership and encouragement for the underclassmen.

"The Juniors and Sophomores are gaining more experience with the years, and this is showing within their routines now," says Coach Goodeman. "They'll be able to use that experience in years to come, and build a stronger team for the future."

The freshmen, according to Coach Goodeman, have grown throughout the season and came through when needed for a routine.

Showing outstanding gymnastics ability are the "all-around" gymnasts: Dawn Marriot, Ronda Hoopingartner, Yuen-Sing Chan, and Beth Morrison.

Wrestling

CHS' 1986-87 Wrestling Team was "the most successful in a decade," according to Coach Tom Sweitzer. Their wins included First Place in the Branch County Meet, and Second Place in the Tecumseh Invitational.

Led by senior Co-captains Shane Finney and Dean Northern, four school records were broken. In addition to that impressive accomplishment, Chris Rehm, Shane Finney and Tracey Greshaw established new individual school records, and Jason Nowicki won the Conference Championship.

Although four seniors; Chris Rehm, Tracey Greshaw, Shane Finney and Dean Northern, added considerable strength to this year's team, Coach Sweitzer sees a good nucleus for next year's team, and hopes to work towards the 1987-8 league title.
