

How to Play

To start the game, everyone takes ten white cards. The player who most recently pooped begins as the Card Czar and draws a black card.

The Card Czar then reads the black card out loud. Everyone else answers the question or fills in the blank on the black card by passing one white card, face down, to the Card Czar.

The Card Czar shuffles all the white cards and re-reads the black card out loud with each one. Finally, the Card Czar picks the funniest combination, and whoever played it wins the round and gets one Awesome Point. The winner may keep the black card.

After the round, a new player becomes the Card Czar, and everyone draws a new white card to replace the one they just played. Keep doing this forever.

Before You Play

Cards Against Humanity: Family Edition was written from scratch to be fun for adults and kids to play together. We wrote it in consultation with child development experts and psychologists, and we tested it extensively with all kinds of families.

That said, we've never met your kids, and we know different people have different sensitivities. So before you play, we recommend you look through this box and remove any cards you don't like.

After You Play

This is the very first version of Cards Against Humanity: Family Edition, and we'd love to hear your feedback. Tell us what you think of the game at www.CAH.family/survey.

This game includes several cards written by actual kids. If your kid thinks of any cards they'd like to see in the game, you can submit new ideas at www.CAH.family/poop.
