

Fine Forgiveness Week:

For the last few months we have had patrons fill out hearts on “Reasons they Love their Library.” Paper hearts are hung on the first floor right on the stairs– here are some of the responses we have been getting. It’s great to hear how our library impacts our patrons!

To keep “that lovin’ feeling” going on and to celebrate National Library Month, we rolled out another program. This program, a tried-and-true one for many libraries, seeks to eliminate barriers to coming into the library. One of those barriers is fines. The bonus for the library is that, while traditionally we don’t forgive that much in fines, we do get many missing items back. And this is good because then the items can recirculate through the community. The mega-bonus for the library is goodwill from the community.
